REBELS CAPTURE EL TIGRE; FEDERALS WIN AT OAXACA

Both Battles Are
Stores and Destruction Property.
One American Is Wounded

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Sept. 15.—Inez Salazar and his rebel band captured El Tigre, the American gold mining camp twice attacked by him, yesterday forenoon at 11 o'clock.

In the fighting before the federal defenders of the camp were defeated, seven federal soldiers were killed and a dozen wounded. Only one American was wounded. He was Gilbert McNeill, but his wound is not serious, as a bullet went through his foot. The rebel loss could not be learned. Word was received until tonight of the taking of the town, and only meager details were received.

Telephone communication was restored long enough to inform the officials here that the town had been taken, and that no Americans had been killed or seriously hurt. Rebels looted the store of the company, taking something like $10,000 worth of goods, and the main body started in the direction of Nacozari, a small band being left in the camp.

The valuable plant of the El Tigre company was not molested. Federal reinforcements for the El Tigre garrison were at a point 15 miles from the camp nine hours before the capture of the town, but they never arrived.

MEXICANS SET TODAY TO KILL AMERICANS

Open Threats Made to Murder
All Who Remain in Sonora on Independence Day

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Sept. 15.—With the absence of definite information as to the movements of the rebels operating in Sonora, south of here, interest today in the Mexican situation on the border centered on the widespread threats of the rebel leaders to kill Americans in Sonora tomorrow, which is the Mexican independence day, and the report that a new revolt against the Madero administration was to be launched.

Threats have been made for the last three weeks to murder all Americans remaining in Sonora. September 15, and in consequence of the intense feeling along the border nearly all of the American towns on or near the international line have prohibited the usual celebration of the day. There will be no formal observance of the holiday in Douglas or in either the American or Mexican town of Nogales.

Rebels Near Capital.

Fulfillment of the threat of Emilio Campa to capture Hermosillo, the capital of Sonora, on the great Mexican holiday, was given some color today when a message from Nogales stated that Campa's rebels were thought to be within striking distance of the capital. There are 150 Americans at Hermosillo. There have been persistent rumors within the last week that therefore strong supporters of the Madero administration were plotting to overthrow Madero and the normal beginning of the new revolt was also said to be set for tomorrow.

If such a conspiracy is afoot, its leaders have kept all details to themselves. United States officials have been busy investigating the rumors, and it is said that much credence is given them by the federal authorities. A force of Mexican federalists, including several hundred Yaqui Indians who have been at Agua Prieta for several days, were dispatched south by General Sanjines today. A special train for the Nacozari railroad took them as the road has been repaired, and their destination was reported to be any place where they were required to protect American lives and property. This was taken to mean either El Tigre or Nacozari.

MADERO OPPONENTS QUIET AT FESTIVAL

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 15.—President Madero, at 11 o'clock tonight, standing at an open window of the national palace, before thousands below, rang the historic liberty bell with which Hidalgo called the people to revolt September 15, 1910, and pronounced the patriotic words uttered by Hidalgo: "Viva Independencia, viva Libertad, viva Mexico."

The spectacular part of the celebration of national independence, will come tomorrow, when a military parade several miles long will be the feature.

There were no anti-Madero demonstrations such as on Friday and Saturday when the president's name was hissed. However, in various parts of the republic, acknowledgments were made of affection for Francisco Diaz, 62 years old today, and whose birthday for a generation has been celebrated jointly with that of independence.

Young men of Puebla gave a dance in Diaz honor; citizens of Oaxaca sent him a congratulatory cablegram; Sonora was decorated in his honor, and Puebla business men drank a toast to the "iron man." El Im-

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 15.—Mexican federal troops won a costly victory yesterday in the vicinity of Oaxaca, when they succeeded in routing an attacking force of 4,000 Indians led by Zapatistas, after three days' fighting.

After falling back from the state capital before the heavy federal artillery fire, the rebels captured San Felipe and Etla, but subsequently were driven from these towns, not, however, before they had sacked both places.

In Etla the rebels dynamited the railway and municipal palace. Several merchants, who attempted to protect their property, were hanged, and a number of stores were burned and sacked.

Fighting Lasted All Day.

Fighting between the federalists and the Indians continued all day yesterday on the ranches and to the little towns surrounding Oaxaca. At San Felipe the government forces lost 41 killed and the rebels 150 killed, several hundred wounded, and a number of prisoners. Among the prisoners were a few recognized as Zapatistas.

In their retreat, the rebels burned several bridges on the Mexican Southern railway between Oaxaca and Puebla. Reports from Puebla tell of the growth of the Zapatista movement in that state. In the state of Mexico, bands of rebels were operating near Toluca, the state capital, yesterday.

In a battle at Jajalpa, south of Toluca, yesterday, the federal forces won a victory and captured 21 prisoners.

cial and El Pais, two of the chief newspapers of the capital, printed three-column cuts of Diaz, with accompanying eulogic editorials.

Eduardo Hax, a young Madero revolution officer, was elected president of the chamber of deputies today, and Gonzalo Enrique president of the senate.

Quiet at Juarez.

JUAREZ, Mexico, Sept. 15.—Aside from a few cries of "Viva Diaz," in honor of the president of Mexico, suppressed by Madero, there was nothing bordering on disorder in Juarez tonight. At 11 o'clock the "verito de Hidalgo," the cry of independence against the Spanish invaders more than a century ago, was sounded throughout the city. Troops followed by crowds of townspeople marched through the streets. The cries for the deposed president of Mexico caused some concern among the military and municipal chiefs, but so far no actual disorders have occurred.

OROZCO CAPTURED BY U. S. SOLDIERS

Father of Rebel Commander in-Chief Arrested After Battle at Ojinaga

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 15.—Ojinaga, the Mexican border town opposite Presidio, Tex., was taken today by federal troops after brisk fighting at daybreak, according to advices received at Fort Bliss by Gen. E. Z. Steever, commanding the department of Texas. General Steever also received a report from army officers at Presidio, Tex., opposite Ojinaga, Mexico, that Col. Pascual Orozco, Sr., father of the rebel leader, was captured yesterday, and is held by United States troops at Presidio, together with Col. P. G. Orozco.

Whether Gen. Pascual Orozco, Jr., the rebel commander-in-chief, was fighting at Ojinaga, or escaped over the international line into the United States, is not known.

Federal forces numbering 350, under command of Col. Manuel Landin, entered Ojinaga proper, driving the rebels before them. The rebels took refuge in San Francisco, a suburb to the south and away from the American side of the line, and at last reports fighting continued. Reports of the number of the rebels defending Ojinaga vary to a large degree.

Will Be Held by U. S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The United States will hold Col. Pascual Orozco, Sr., father of the rebel general and Col. P. G. Orozco, with any other captured Mexican rebels probably for deportation to Mexico. No charges of violations of the neutrality laws are pending against either and their position is the same as that of any of their men.

General Orozco, however, if captured, would be held for the Mexican government, which is prepared to ask for his extradition to face charges of embezzlement of funds in his care while inspecting general of rurales and charges of murder and brigandage.

General Orozco's father was captured according to the war department, by American troops patrolling the border, after he had crossed the international line without arms, evidently seeking safety.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the army, tonight ordered Brigadier General Steever of the Mexican front.

HAYWOOD CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY

Arrested in Boston Following
Talk Urging Strike in New England

BOSTON, Sept. 15.—William D. Haywood of Denver, general organizer of the Industrial Workers of the World, was arrested here today, on a capias issued as the result of the indictment charging him with conspiracy in connection with the strike of textile workers in Lawrence last winter. He was released on $1,000 bond.

The exact nature of the conspiracy with which Haywood is charged was not mentioned in the indictment. Just before his arrest, Haywood in addressing a mass meeting of 15,000 persons on Boston Commons, had sounded a call for a general strike of New England workers to begin a nationwide movement as a protest against the "arrest, imprisonment and trial of Ettore, Giovanni and Caruso."

These three Industrial Workers, who were active during the Lawrence strike, are charged with complicity in murder in connection with the shooting of a striker, Anna La Porra, in a riot in Lawrence last January.

Demand Release of Leaders.

At today's meeting banners were displayed calling for the release of the three leaders and Haywood was cheered when he cried:

"We will open the jail doors or close the mill gates."

In urging a general strike, the speaker declared a strike probable by the end of the week, and said it surely would come before September 20, the date set for the beginning of the leaders' trials. He advised the assembled workers to begin the strike tomorrow.

"If you leave your homes tomorrow, you will make no mistake," he said. "Any time between now and September 20 will do, but the sooner the better. If you go out tomorrow you will be the forerunners, the vanguard of a great movement for freedom."

Haywood said that such a strike as a movement of general protest, "would save lives just as did that great movement of sympathy and support which resulted in the vindication of Moyer, Pettibone and myself."

Arrested After Meeting.

The indictment on which Haywood was arrested was returned by the Essex grand jury several months ago, and although the state police made preparations to arrest him when it was announced that he would come into the state today, no interference with the mass meeting was attempted. Haywood held a reception on the common, delivered his speech and then hurried away through the crowd to one of the common exits where officers of the state police met him and took him in an automobile to the police station.

He was ordered to appear before the superior criminal court of Essex county at Lawrence tomorrow. He was furnished by Attorney Fred H. Moore of Los Angeles, who has been engaged to defend Ettore, Giovanni and Caruso. To attend the protest meeting on the common, Haywood had several operatives who were on strike in Lawrence last winter came to Boston in three special trains.

MEMORIAL SERVICE AT COURT TODAY IN HONOR OF JOSEPH E. FERGUSON

In honor of the late Joseph E. Ferguson, district attorney for the fourth judicial district, who died suddenly at the Algonia hotel one week ago yesterday, a memorial service will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon as part of the regular proceedings of the district court. All three of the district judges will be on the bench, and all local members of the bar are requested to be present. A number of addresses will be given, chief among which will be that of M. W. Purcell, Ferguson's assistant. Resolutions drawn up by a committee, composed of S. H. Kinsley, Henry C. Hall, W. J. Chinn, Arthur Cornforth and W. D. Lombard, appointed by Judge Shonover last Thursday, will be presented at the services, and will be introduced into the record of the court proceedings. At the close of the services, in further honor of Mr. Ferguson, court will adjourn for the day.

150 WOMEN DELEGATES AT BULL MOOSE CONVENTION

(Above, left to right: Mrs. William Grant Brown, Miss Alice Carpenter and Mrs. Harriet Johnston Wood. Below, left to right: Miss Grace E. Waltherbeck and Miss Clara Morrison.) When the New York state convention of the Progressive party convened at Syracuse, 150 duly elected women delegates were present, and more than one thousand women from all parts of the state crowded the visitors' sections. This is the first time in the political history of the state that women, as regularly chosen delegates, have attended a state convention. Among the women delegates were many with national reputation in various fields of professional life, including physicians, lawyers, newspaper writers, business women, authors and working women.

GIRL SHOTS FATHER AFTER FOLLOWING HIM 100 MILES

Dressed as Man and Without Food, She Trails Parent on Foot
Surrenders to Authorities After Committing Crime

COLUMBIA, Wash., Sept. 15.—Westley Brownell, aged 25, and his 17-year-old wife, Winnie, residents of Cul de Sac, Idaho, shot and killed today A. Neeves, the step-father of Mrs. Brownell. Both the authorities say, made full confessions.

Neeves was charged by his daughter with having maltreated her in Idaho, and killing today A. Neeves, the step-father of Mrs. Brownell. Both the authorities say, made full confessions. Neeves was charged by his daughter with having maltreated her in Idaho, and killing today A. Neeves, the step-father of Mrs. Brownell. Both the authorities say, made full confessions.

The shooting took place at the Charles Look ranch, near Colfax, where Neeves and his wife had come, bringing with them the Brownell child. Brownell and his wife had walked a hundred miles in search of Neeves. They had been without food for more than a day and had hidden in the barn at Look's ranch, waiting for Neeves to appear.

When the boys left home to visit neighbors today, the Brownells entered the house. After sending the children outside, Brownell shot Neeves five times, according to his statement. As Neeves fell, the daughter "shot him through the head."

Surrenders to Sheriff.

Failing to get telephone communication with the sheriff's office at Cul de Sac, the Brownells took the children to neighbors and started to walk to Colfax to give themselves up. Sheriff Carter and Deputy Cole, who were subsequently informed by neighbors, found the couple as they were making their way along the road.

Mrs. Brownell was masquerading as a man, her husband having cut her hair and dressed her in male attire. Both were exhausted.

They told the sheriff the act was done because they could not get justice in Idaho. They stated that they had sworn out a complaint against a teacher, and were threatened, with being killed so they left their home with Justice Stewart at Cul de Sac and fled to the woods and mountains. Later they decided to come back and kill these who wronged Mrs. Brownell.

They found Justice Stewart and placed the children with Mrs. Neeves, and that she and her husband had taken them to the Long home at Colfax. The Brownells, being without means, followed on foot.

The story they told the authorities was a pitiful and straightforward confession with no request for the killing. Mrs. Brownell said she wished to kill her step-father and tried the first shot in his hand as he lay struggling on the porch. Both revealed their guilt after the shooting.

COL. ROOSEVELT READY FOR "SOME MORE OF IT"

Spends Quiet Day in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15.—After a quiet day in San Francisco, Colonel Roosevelt left tonight for Los Angeles, the next point on his tour of the continent. The afternoon was spent in the quiet of a hotel, and the evening was passed in a quiet dinner.

His "Lucky Number" on Board.

Colonel Roosevelt's "lucky number" on board the train was 13. He had a very quiet day in San Francisco, and the evening was passed in a quiet dinner.

Financial Review

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Last week's stock market closed without the actual knowledge revealed by the Saturday bank statement of the extent to which the readjustment of bank accounts had proceeded, a condition made necessary by the continued drain of cash reserves to the interior.

That professional short selling entered into the explanation of the fall in prices was evidenced by the rallies. Transfer of loans called to anterior banks and the decline in the foreign exchange rates to the gold import point afforded resources for relief from the pressure on stock market borrowers.

The week's recuperation affected by the banks in their position by calling loans and the reduction of deposit liabilities is not expected to meet the season's requirements against the withdrawal of currency for the crop movement.

It is expected that loans on call placed by interior banks to take advantage of the higher rate, will be further recalled as the season's needs for currency are extended.

The movement of cash away from New York on balance usually continues into the first week of December. Operations in the stock market in the immediate future must rely on credit not subject to those factors of contraction.

It was for this reason that stocks were freely sold in a week when the largest of information pointed to wholly favorable conclusions regarding the future.

The push of grain to market already threatens to swamp railroad facilities and from this evidence of prosperity some anxiety is felt.

Seeing buying of freight cars and the rush to buy all sorts of railroad equipment keeps on the stimulation of the iron and steel trade. The thousands of tons of August production of refined copper, while many millions in excess of any previous monthly record, was more than absorbed by consumers, so that a $2,500,000 reduction in price was secured.

It is felt that the largest working balance in the United States treasury is in a position to afford relief for any emergency in the money market.

Iron and Steel

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—The steel trade continues to be in the process of liquidation of the surplus of the year, and the mills are being further shut in consequence.

Speculation in the market to permit the selling of surplus stock is reported, but there is an adequate supply of commodities to meet the demand. The largest orders purchased, 100,000 tons of steel, at the market at an advance of $1 a ton over net, and sales are still trending upward.

The active demand for iron and galvanized sheets prompted an advance of $1 a ton on black and $1 on galvanized, and additional large sales of boiler plates and structural steel prompted a rise in schedules with an advance of $2 to $4 per ton on some sizes.

Railroad orders for equipment were light, but a large order of 100,000 tons of steel for the Pennsylvania Railroad is being reported by the Pennsylvania Railroad. New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, and other eastern roads for 1913 shipments, while the Santa Fe has inquiries for 20,000 tons, the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western for 25,000 tons and export inquiries amount to 20,000 tons.

Tungsten, which only in recent years has come into general use, was discussed exhaustively by a Spanish treatise written in 1783.

RIO GRANDE READY TO SPEND $2,000,000

to Standard Gauge Line Over Marshall Pass—Other Big Improvements

DENVER, Sept. 15.—Announcement has just been made by President Bush and Vice President Brown that at a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad company, New York city, it was decided to standard gauge the present narrow gauge line over Marshall pass, between Salida and Montrose, Colo. This involves building the gauge from three feet to four feet, eight and a half inches for a distance of 10 miles at a cost of approximately $2,000,000.

From 1883 to 1890 transcontinental trains of the Denver & Rio Grande were operated over Marshall pass, but in the year last mentioned the standard gauge line by way of Thompson's pass and Glenwood Springs to Grand Junction was constructed, and since then, though trains have been operated over the latter route, and the Marshall pass narrow-gauge line has been reserved especially for tourists and sightseers and such local freight as originates in the narrow gauge territory.

Will Follow Old Line.
The Marshall pass route, famed the world over for its scenic attractions, crosses the continental divide at an altitude of 10,856 feet, and the new standard gauge line will cross at the same elevation and preserve the many scenic attractions of the old route. Marshall pass, by reason of being the first, is perhaps the best known crossing of the continental divide. This comparatively low pass was discovered in 1871 by Lieut. W. L. Marshall, at that time attached to the Geological Survey, now brigadier general of the United States army, retired, and a resident of Washington, D. C. The pass was named after Lieutenant Marshall.

The decision of the directors to appropriate so large a sum of money was arrived at in order to properly take care of the rapidly increasing transcontinental traffic augmented by the opening of the Western Pacific railway, the Pacific coast extension of the Denver & Rio Grande, as well as to take care of the enormous tonnage in fruit, coal, grain, cattle and ore traffic being developed on the western slope of the Rocky mountains in Colorado, and thereby increase the road's transportation facilities by having two standard gauge lines through the Rocky mountains.

Work Will Start Soon.
A large engineering force is now in the field, making surveys and rectifying the alignment of such portions of the narrow gauge as are unsuitable for standard gauge operation on account of the curvature. These surveys are being rapidly made, and when completed, contracts will be let for the new work. An order will be placed in the near future for a large number of heavy steel bridges, which will be required to take the place of the present structures, which are adapted for narrow gauge equipment.

It is anticipated that the work will be completed within the next 12 months, in ample time to move the 1913 fruit and potato crops of the Unimpaired and North Park valleys in Colorado.

When the new Marshall pass line is completed, the Denver & Rio Grande will have two standard gauge main lines through the Rocky mountains between Denver and Salt Lake City, and by way of Thompson's pass, Glenwood Springs and Grand Junction, and the other over Marshall pass through the black canyon of the Gunnison, by way of Montrose, Delta and Grand Junction.

BLUEJACKETS SENT TO CHINANDEGO, NIC.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Morris and his friends from the United States navy were sent to Chinandego, Nicaragua, an important port on the northern coast of that country.

ASKED TO EASE MARKET WITH TREASURY FUND

Secretary of the Treasury, McVeagh has under consideration suggestions that the treasury department distribute some of the surplus funds among the national banks to be available for the movement of crops during the next few weeks. The working balance of the treasury is now a trifle over $40,000,000. Half of this amount, it is said, could be placed in the national banks if necessary. Mr. McVeagh will probably discuss with President Taft soon the question of the necessity and desirability of placing some of the government funds to meet the moving crop demands.

EXPERIENCE DIFFICULTY IN BEING WED BECAUSE OF PRENUPTIAL COMPACT

PASADENA, Sept. 15.—Carlton W. Washburne of Pasadena and Miss Helga Chandler of Philadelphia, who on Friday, September 13, obtained a marriage license and entered into a prenuptial agreement that marriage should not be a drag on either, were married here today at the groom's home, after considerable difficulty.

The groom, who is 28 years old, and the bride, 21, had known each other only a week when they obtained their marriage license, and formed their contract.

They requested Judge Robert W. McDowell of Pasadena to perform their marriage ceremony today, but he refused on the ground that he thought the agreement practically nullified the institution of marriage.

The couple then sent to Alhambra for Judge W. M. Northrup, who came here and performed the ceremony after asking one question—whether any legal obstacle prevented their union.

The prenuptial agreement sets forth, among other things, that the marriage shall not be understood to give either party to it control or possession of the other; that it shall not be a bar to either marriage should this one prove unfruitful; that the tie shall terminate with the death of love on either side, and that neither shall restrain the other if he or she shall see fit to incur other parental responsibility.

In case of separation, financial responsibility shall continue to be divided.

COMPTROLLER MURRAY'S RESIGNATION NOT ASKED

REVERLY, Mass., Sept. 15.—The president and Mrs. Taft returned to Beverly tonight from Millbury, where the president celebrated his fifty-fifth birthday with his aunt, Miss Della Torrey.

Miss Torrey, Miss Helen Taft and Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Taft came back with the president. Miss Torrey will visit at Paramatta, the Taft cottage, for several days.

The president, tired after his long motor ride, saw no visitors tonight. White house officials, however, said the report from Washington that the president contemplated asking for the resignation of Comptroller of the Currency Murray had no basis. They said the president had not asked for Mr. Murray's resignation, and had no intention of doing so.

According to the Washington report, Mr. Murray was to be asked to resign because he had leanings toward the new party and because he had refused to write a chapter for the Republican campaign text book on the government's finances.

Officials here know nothing of any complaint against Mr. Murray. They pointed out tonight that under the law the comptroller of the currency can be removed by the president only for cause, which he must submit to the United States senate.

STORIES OF RESIGNATION A SURPRISE TO FRIENDS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Painted reports that President Taft was about to ask Lawrence C. Murray, comptroller of the currency, to resign his place because of leanings to the Progressive party, were a great surprise today to the comptroller's friends.

More than a year ago, when it was reported that Comptroller Murray was about to resign to become head of the bank at Pittsburg, a statement, given out with the approval of Secretary MacVeagh, declared it was the wish of the administration that Mr. Murray serve out his term.

Comptroller Murray was a personal friend of Colonel Roosevelt when the latter was president.

The only outward evidence of friction between Mr. Murray and the treasury was when recently, A. J. A. Andrews, former assistant secretary, resigned, and in a letter to President Taft requested Secretary MacVeagh to appoint a man for his successor. Andrews and Comptroller Murray were other officials, as one who would back up his statements.

At once named, with the exception of Mr. Murray and Lee McChesney, treasurer of the United States, behind Mr. Andrews' resignation, Mr. Murray and Mr. McChesney, however, were silent.

NUMEROUS CONTESTS IN CALIFORNIA COUNTIES

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15.—The Republican state central committee of California has its work cut out for it as the result of reports which trickled into headquarters today from forty counties held yesterday in various parts of the state. These reports indicated numerous contests.

In six counties, including Los Angeles, Taft supporters fought the elections rather than participate in the movement of the Progressive party candidates. In six others they contested the situation. In Lake county, Col. M. H. Hargrave, a relative by marriage of Colonel Roosevelt and leader of the Taft primary campaign, was defeated from chairmanship of the county central committee by the Progressive forces. In Stanislaus county, the Taft men had a convention under way when the Roosevelt men arrived and the latter held another at the other end of the same hall, amid much noise.

GOV. JOHNSON STARTS ON TOUR OF ILLINOIS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 15.—Governor Johnson left here today preparatory to beginning his second invasion of Illinois tomorrow. He will leave over the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning and short stops will be made at Keokuk and Fort Madison, Iowa. Meetings are scheduled for Quincy, Macomb, Galesburg and Peoria, Ill.

THINK BLISS RECORDS HAVE BEEN LOCATED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—A portion of the books and records kept by Cornelius N. Bliss as treasurer of the Republican national committee in the 1904 presidential campaign, probably have been located and may be produced before the senate committee investigating campaign expenditures, according to a statement today by Senator Pomeroy of Ohio, a member of the committee.

At the conclusion of a conference with Chairman Clapp over the week in it taken by the committee when it was believed that a part of the records kept by Mr. Bliss had been located.

LOYAL TO HER HUSBAND IN TROUBLE

Mrs. Burton W. Gibson, wife of the New York attorney, whose name is connected with the recent drowning of Countess Rosa Szabo, of Austria-Hungary, which is being investigated at the request of New York representatives of her country, Mrs. Gibson staunchly denies all the ominous rumors which are afloat connecting her husband with the drowning. Gibson was in the boat with the countess at the time she met her sudden end, and after having the body buried under another name, he secured a letter appointing him executor of the dead woman's estate, which, he said, was left to the mother of the countess. The Hungarian authorities declare the countess' mother has been dead two years. Within the last six years four clients of Gibson have met with sudden and mysterious deaths, while still another disappeared. Mrs. Gibson has asserted her faith in her husband and announced her intention of sticking to him through thick and thin.

Steel Corporation Becomes Bankrupt

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 15.—Efforts of former Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw, to scrape up money for the tottering Western Steel corporation, did not prevent the company from going into bankruptcy, according to explanations made by the company's attorneys here today.

Mr. Shaw's name came into the case when the Metropolitan Trust company of New York filed sworn copies of correspondence to show that he helped James A. Moore, the Western Steel corporation's promoter, to get a loan of $800,000 from the company. It is Moore's contention that the loan of this $800,000 and the action of the trust company in calling the loan at a critical time, threw the concern into bankruptcy, and he is suing the trust company for $1,000,000 damages.

Shaw, according to the papers submitted by the trust company, got credit 750 shares of preferred stock with 1,000 shares of common stock due him, the certified copy of his receipt says.

Moore's counsel said tonight that certain other correspondence submitted between Moore and Shaw was written after the loan was granted, and had reference to $2,000,000 additional which Moore contends the trust company promised to advance him.

SHAW DENIES CONNECTION WITH BIG STEEL CONCERN

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—Leslie M. Shaw, formerly secretary of the treasury, tonight denied he had assisted in the promotion of the Western Steel corporation, as alleged in affidavits filed yesterday in Seattle.

"The Western Steel corporation was organized, capitalized and the bond issue made before I ever heard of any such concern," said Mr. Shaw. "I had nothing whatever to do with its promotion or with procuring the Metropolitan loan."

"I went to Seattle in the spring of 1911 with a European engineer, who went to examine the plant and its properties with a view to making a $10,000,000 loan, which certain European bankers had underwritten on condition that the property proved as represented. There was too much snow to permit a satisfactory examination of the ore deposits. I returned some time before the engineer, I did not know, except from the statements of the engineer and Mr. Moore, respectively, which do not agree, exactly why the loan was not consummated."

"The services I rendered and the money I advanced were worth many fold the value of the stock I received, had the stock been worth par. I only received a fraction of what was due me under the contract."

KINDNESS

Ought we not to make a covenant with ourselves and ask God to seal it with his blessing, that we will be kind, from the time we rise to the time we lie down—in our homes, in our offices, through our pleasure and through our work—to the people of our blood and to the people of our acquaintance? Might we not ask for a little further and resolve that every day we will do at least one act of kindness to some neighbor? If everyone did an act of daily kindness to his neighbor and refused to do any unkindness, half the sorrow of this world would be lifted and disappear.

DOINGS IN DENVER

READERS of the Denver papers cannot refrain from fixed opinions regarding conditions in the capital city. It is manifestly plain that the people there, if the papers can be regarded as truthful, have expended too much time in attempting to populate the city and too little time in populating the various cemeteries in its vicinity.

The recent grand jury indicted Mayor Speer and Mayor Arnold. Then it indicted a trust company, a school board and several property owners who rent their buildings for immoral purposes. Several hundred tenants of this character were then indicted and the grand jury reported and adjourned.

Now it is contended that the gentlemen of the jury overlooked several hundred and another grand jury is demanded.

They propose to indict corporations for operating without a franchise and also to indict a few for operating with a franchise. In select circles bridge parties are transformed into grand juries on account of the popularity of such things, and the ladies indict their neighbors.

As a matter of fact the man who has not been indicted for something is looked down upon. They regard him as a member of a hopeless minority.

The people of the state will hope for changed conditions at the capital. All the discord and contention there plays a mischievous part in every section of the state and the innocent bystander is getting hit pretty hard.

POLITICAL MOTHERS

AN OHIO publication, gloating as a result of the defeat of equal suffrage in that state, remarks: "We are at last free from the political mother for a season, at least."

We imagine that the author of the above statement will admit that he has been influenced in some of his better political deeds in life by a mother. One of the forgotten features of equal suffrage is the influence exerted by good mothers over the generation growing up to take over the reigns of government.

It would be a blessing if more mothers would teach these young people the better side of economics. It would be better if the present generation could reach a voting age appreciative of the need for clean honest government for the people and administered by the people.

The work of the politician—the profession of politics—would soon become a lost art, for mothers can impress upon their sons and daughters the real ideas of decent government more forcibly than the politician can.

And the impressions made by mother are likely to prove indelible. Time and conditions cannot erase them as it can the flitting impressions made by the politician whose only motive is a measure of success for himself.

Women are not playing the part they should where they have the opportunity. In states where the ballot has been given them they do not study conditions as they should. In years to come it will be found that politics play an important part in the life of the individual. Of recent years it has proven conspicuously so and this will awaken the people to their needs and requirements.

Bad commercial conditions, bad educational conditions and bad governmental conditions can usually be attributed to bad politics.

Our present high-cost of living can be traced directly to the door of bad politics. Big Business controls the output, therefore the price. At the present time fraud, false pretense and other sharp practices in politics are condoned because the people, under a rule existing for years, have become calloused to conditions. The public conscience is seared.

Stealing votes is too often commended. "Anything is fair in war and politics" has become a time-worn expression.

But all this will be changed. It has required the lapse of over half a century to prove to the people that their passive consent to such things has permitted those whom they placed in power to take the things from them which of right belongs to them and not to the politicians of the special interests.

The mothers and the fathers of today should talk more politics at home. They should realize that all the great fundamental questions involving matters of moment to them will also represent matters of moment to the children after they have grown up and assumed the duties of citizenship.

Begin now to teach your children the better theories of decent politics. The mothers of the state can accomplish wonders along this line. It will mean that voters in generations to come will have imbued an idea of clean government and that means, in the composite, that they will enforce these ideas and go after what they want and get it.

Let us see to it that we have a larger number of "political mothers," as the Ohio editor calls them.

HUMAN RESOURCES

A REALLY wholesome, thoughtful day of rest proves the need for the conservation of human energy, human resources. We are living in a very swift age. No thought is given to the day when the sunset comes. Every breath is drawn with only the present in view. Every thought is for today and not for tomorrow.

Now-a-days people seem to think it advisable to "live within their means" if they have to borrow money to do it with.

Various states have passed laws making it a criminal offense for corporations to compel a man to labor more than six days per week. A few states have laws prohibiting the overtaxing of the human strength. Railroad men are only permitted to remain on duty a certain number of hours. This law prevails in Colorado.

The trend of legislation is toward the conservation of human energy. It represents the dynamo the motor the propelling force of all progress. Perhaps lawmakers err when they suggest that this great force might be weakened, but it is better to believe it to be a wise course to preserve it while it is possible to do so.

The things most desired these days are either wrought by or bought by human energy.

A day of rest a day of thought brings to mind the necessity for this conservation. Like hegets like and a broken down race lacking the vital spark and the strength required to guarantee success will not beget a better race.

For this reason lawmakers, legislators and the profoundest students of economics are beginning to give their attention to saving what we have and preventing a waste of energy that might make for woe in the future.

THE SPIRIT OF THE PROGRESSIVES.

From the Kansas City Times.
The splendid spirit that dominated the Jackson County Progressive convention yesterday was the most potent factor of the gathering and the feature of the movement that gives the greatest assurance of success. It was the same spirit that characterized the Missouri state convention in Kansas City a few weeks ago—the spirit that amazed the old time politicians who witnessed the Progressive national convention at Chicago, and that gave inspiration to the delegates who were present.

It was the spirit of unselfish devotion to progressive policies above every other consideration; the spirit that sought the right thing to do rather than to "play politics." There was no attempt to put personal considerations above the principles involved in the progressive movement. All the candidates, as well as the supporters of the candidates, were inspired by the same thought—to do the thing that appealed to them as right.

And it is that spirit of the Progressives that alarms the old party politicians even more than the big numbers that attend the conventions.

NO WOMEN VOTERS IN CANADA.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.
Militant suffragettes of London have met Premier Borden of Canada, and have been repulsed. They demanded of the premier to know categorically whether he would introduce into the next Canadian parliament a measure giving votes for women. He replied that absolutely he would not. As a fact, he explained that the Canadian parliament had nothing whatever to do with the suffrage, as that was a matter for the various states. This seemed to infuriate the suffragettes.

Mr. Borden might have stopped here, but he went further. He said he would not introduce such a measure even if he could, and that it was the business of the women of Canada, and not of a lot of excited campaigners in London. If the women of Canada wanted to vote they do so at their own sweet time, and to intimate that the worst thing that could happen for the cause in Canada would be for the militants of London to start a campaign on the subject.

Canadian people seem to enjoy humor, the success of their premier. As a fact, equal suffrage has not become much of an issue in Canada, and when it does the Canadians do not want any outside interference. As a fact, the daughter of the snows is just now looking down with a good deal of contempt on Mother England. She is acting like a married daughter who has left the parental roof for a much better home of her own, who wants no dictation, looks at advice askance, and considers the old folks very annoying anyway. Thus, Mr. Borden went from London to Paris to make commercial treaties, which are considered a snap at home.

That Canada can do pretty much as she pleases in these days. She has an academic affection for the mother country, but it must not be strained too far. Canada feels that she is "young punkin'." At present, while she talks of her future in a way that would seem brave were it not based on substantial considerations.

TIME'S REVENGES.

From the Chicago Tribune.
Twenty years exactly from the time when a general of the Boer forces, Louis Botha with some men desperately opposed the British armies under

French and Pole-Carew, the redoubtable leader of the colonial Dutch finds himself not only minister of agriculture and premier of the Union of South Africa, but also, by the king's command, constituted an honorary general of the British army.

By force of his military ability Botha rose from the position of lieutenant colonel at the beginning of the war to the highest place in the army and made himself the most dreaded man opposed to the British forces. His check of Buller at Colesburg brought him his first substantial fame as a leader and up to Botha's death he succeeded in commanding for three years from 1899 his strategy constantly baffled British efforts.

After the peace of Vereeniging he retired to his farm, until he was called to be premier of the Transvaal and three years later to be premier of the Union of South Africa. He only chose to cast his fortunes with his people under British rule. In doing this he retained the respect and honor of the Boers and of their late enemies. Now he is entitled to wear the title and uniform of the highest of his old combatants.

On the Impossibility of Forgetting

By RUTH CAMERON.

Two good friends had quarreled. One, who is of a passionate disposition, completely lost her self-control and said many unkind things. When the thundercloud of misunderstanding finally passed over and the sunshine of reconciliation began to struggle out again, the quick-tempered woman told her friend she was sorry for her bitter words, and then added cheerfully: "And now you'll forgive me and forget all that I said, won't you?"

Whereupon the other woman answered, "Forgive you? Yes indeed, I'll do that with all my heart, but I cannot promise to forget because that is beyond my power."

The first woman called that an ungracious and relentless attitude.

"Do you?"

"I don't. To me it was simply a truthful answer. Perhaps it might have been kinder for the woman to say that she'd forget all about it and things would be just as they were before, but it probably wouldn't have been true.

In one of his essays Stevenson says, "I hate questions and questions; there are so few that can be spoken to without a lie." "Do you forgive me?" "Madam, and sweetheart, so far as I have known in life I have never been able to discover what forgiveness means. Is it still the same between us? Why how can it be? It is eternally different, and yet you are still the friend of my heart."

It seems to me he should have added that other question, "Will you forget all that I have said or done?" for surely no other question that we foolishly and hopelessly ask each other is quite so impossible to answer without a lie or a very cruel truth.

The woman called her friend relentless. That was not fair. It is not the person who cannot forget that is relentless; it is life itself and the laws of life that are inflexible.

I may no more promise my friend that I will forget anything than I may promise her that a dog out in my flesh will heal and not leave any scar. I may promise that I will not put soothing medicine in the cut and bind it up and keep it from irritation, and do all I can to make it heal without a scar, but I cannot surely promise what will be the result.

Hearts and souls are quite as sensitive as bodies. We would not easily allow ourselves in a flash of temper to scar our friend's body; why, then, be so careless with his heart?

Why? Because we think that such scars can be easily obliterated, because we think we can say, "please forget" and let that end it.

But we cannot. And the next time you lift the javelin of an unforgettable word to cast into your friend's heart, suppose you remember that. Suppose you stop just one moment before you speak and say this sentence over to yourself, "Of the unspoken word I am master, but the spoken word is master of me."

TREATING

BY GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash"

Treating is an American pastime. It is also exhibited in the European effort to prove that all Americans are crazy.

Treating is the process of drinking a drink which you do not want in order to buy another man a drink which he probably doesn't want, and then drinking another drink which you want still less in order to give him the opportunity of paying you back before you can consider him a tight wad who would rather surrender his money on hats for his wife than in a noble effort to drown his friends.

This, however, is only the beginning of a treat. Then the first man, having drunk two drinks which he didn't want, and drunk a third on himself which he doesn't want, and drinks a third on himself which is as unwholesome as a ninth cousin at Thanksgiving.

After which two other such come in and the treatee buys the treator another drink and one for himself, which he hasn't room for, and also buys drinks for the two newcomers.

Then each of the two newcomers buys drinks for the other three, after which the original treator repays the new obligation by buying the original treatee his seventh drink and drinks for the two newcomers and another for himself, which he has to push down with sweat.

Then the treator indignantly demands that he be allowed to treat himself and he buys drinks for all the four, and immediately prove that they are freeborn patriots by buying drinks for everybody. Then the original treator, having poured the ninth, tenth and eleventh drinks on his half, buys a barrel of refreshments for the other six men and four more whom he goes out and drags in by force, gives his story to the bartender, tells the free lunch the story of his freshly picked young life and goes to sleep on the ash can in the alley, weeping over the fact that Cleopatra was no lady.

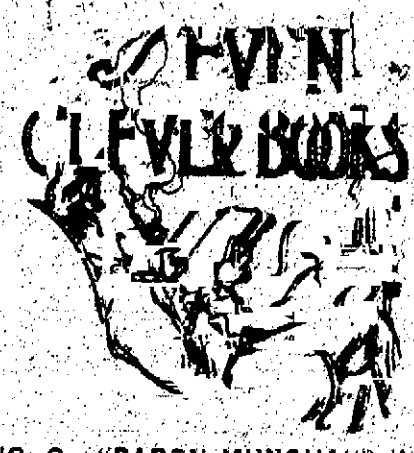

Treating is etiquette and is more rigidly observed than most state and national laws. A man must always buy a drink when his turn comes. Only death or paralysis of the bartender can stop the rotation. Consequently, thousands of men who go into bars to drink a small drink of beer are rescued from the bar later in the day by the life saving crew in a taxicab after incredible perils.

Some men are so mean and lost to all sense of honor or decency that they will not only go home after being treated without treating back, but will sneak away and drink by themselves. These men should, of course, be avoided. They can be told by their pale complexions and almost painful sberity.

NO. 2 "BARON MUNCHAUSEN"

Who is there that has not, in his youth, enjoyed the surprising "Travels and Adventures of Baron Munchausen," in Russia, the Caspian sea, Iceland, Turkey, etc., told in a slim volume, all too short, indeed, illustrated by a formidable portrait of the baron in front, with his broad sword laid over his shoulder and several deep gashes on his manly countenance?

This book appears to have been first published in a restricted form, by one Kearnsley, a bookseller in Fleet street, London, in 1785. A few years afterwards it was reprinted with a considerable addition of palpalis inferior matter, by H. D. Symonds of Paternoster-row. The author's name was not given and it was till a recent date, remained little or not at all known. There can hardly be a more curious piece of neglected biography.

The author of the baron's wonderful adventures is now known to have been a learned and scientific German, who died in the latter part of 1794 at Marburg, in the south of Ireland, while conducting some mining operations there. Much there was of both good and ill about poor Raspe. This ingenious man, who was born at Hanover in 1733, commenced life in the service of the landgrave of Hesse-Cassel as professor of archaeology, inspector of the public cabinet of medals, keeper of the national library, and a geologist, but disgraced himself by putting some of the valuable treasures in his pawn to raise money for some temporary necessities. He disappeared and was advertised for by the police as a Councillor Raspe, a man with red hair, who usually appeared in a scarlet suit, embroidered with gold, but sometimes in black, blue or gray clothes. He was arrested at Clausen, but escaped during the night, and made his way to England, where he chiefly resided for the remainder of his days.

Before his lamentable "downbreak" in life, Raspe had manifested decided talent in the investigation of questions in geology and mineralogy. He published in Leipzig, in 1783, a curious volume in Latin, on the formation of volcanic islands and the nature of petrified bodies. In 1789 there was read at the Royal society in London a Latin paper on his on the teeth of elephants and other animals found in North America, and it is surprising that rational and just conclusions he had arrived. Raspe had detected the specific regularities, distinguishing these teeth from those of living elephants, and found no reasoning for disbelieving that some large elephants might have formerly lived in cold climates, being exactly the views long after generally adopted on this subject.

The exact time of the flight to England is not known, but in 1776 he is found publishing in London a volume of some German volcanoes, thus again showing his early apprehension of facts then little, if at all, understood, though now familiar. And in the ensuing year he gave forth a translation of the Baron Born's Travels in Transylvania, Transylvania, and Hungary—a mineralogical work of high reputation. In 1780, Horace Walpole speaks of him as "a Dutch savant, who has come over here, and is preparing to publish two old manuscripts in Latin, on oil painting," which proved Walpole was an idea that the use of oil colors was known before the days of Van Eyck.

Such in part is a history of the early life of the author of "Baron Munchausen," a man of great natural penetration and attainments, possessed of lively general faculties, and well fitted for a prominent position in life. Wanting, however, the crowning grace of probity, he never quite got his head above water, and died in poverty and obscurity. It will be observed that, in his mining operations in Cathness, he answered to the character of Doubterville in the "Antiquary," and there is every reason to believe that he gave Scott the idea of that character, albeit the baronet of Tiberst did not prove to be so extremely imposed upon as Sir Arthur Wardour, or in any other respect a prototype of that ideal personage.

Of all Raspe's acknowledged works, learned, ingenious and interesting, not one is now familiar, and his literary fame must rest with what he probably regarded as a mere "jeu d'esprit." It may be remarked that a mere translation of the "Baron" into German was published by the ingenious Burger in 1787. This was very proper, for most of the marvels were of German origin. Some of these connected with hunting are to be found in a dull prose form, in Henry Baber's "Facetiae," printed in Strasburg in 1508, others of the tales are borrowed from "Castiglione's 'The Courtier'" and other known sources.

MUCH DATA NECESSARY.

Three principal kinds of data are essential to a proper checking up of health conditions in any country. The first is the statistics of births. With these statistics, data as to infant mortality makes its beginning. Without them no accurate measure of health conditions in infancy can be taken. We know that infancy is the most fatal period of human life, and that it is impossible effectively to protect the little babies without accurate data about them. Yet, comparatively few of the countries of the world have adequate birth statistics. In our country few of the states have birth registration laws.

The second essential line of information needed properly to gauge the public health to tell of the need of repressive measures, and to indicate the results that grow out of the adoption of such measures, is data concerning diseases. Many states have made certain of the most serious diseases reportable—that is, doctors are obliged to report cases in their practice to the local health officers. In the majority of cities, and also in a few of the states, all contagious diseases are required to be reported. Without such data Chicago never would have known the wide extent of typhoid fever preying there, and the drainage canal would not have been built. And without it afterward the wonderful result in the cutting down of the death rate from typhoid fever—the economic saving being vast in excess of the interest on the cost—could not have been measured.

SUGGESTS UNIVERSAL DEATH CERTIFICATE.

Death statistics also are highly essential. One of the great problems has been to get a universal death certificate and a universal practice in the statement of the causes of death. An international congress has considered this matter, and steps are being taken looking to the worldwide use of a standard death certificate showing the causes of death. This data now is given more thoroughly than any other kind of health statistics. More than half of the population in the United States now lives in territories where there is a registration of the causes of death. The census office is pushing the movement to have all the states adopt such registration.

All of these matters will come before the congress in the form of reports upon results and discussions. One of the speakers will be Dr. Cressy

HYGIENE AND SANITATION
III VITAL STATISTICS

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

The program of the division of demography—or vital statistics—of the International Congress of Hygiene and Demography covers the whole range of health and death statistics. It is only through the work of those who gather and digest the statistics of health and disease that a country is able to know that measures are needed to promote the public health and that results follow the adoption of these measures. For instance, when vaccination against typhoid fever was worked out it was only because the information gathered with reference to the prevalence of the disease pointed the medical fraternity to the necessity of adopting repressive measures. Likewise, but for the statistics kept, it would be impossible now to gauge the full results of the new methods of rendering people immune from the disease. The results have been so remarkable that they would hardly be believed but for the cold figures that have been kept. When we consider 25,000 cases of vaccination, measuring the number of cases and the number of deaths in a like number of non-vaccinated persons, and then compare the results with the cases of those who have been vaccinated, we begin to see what the effect of vaccination against typhoid has been.

The same is true of tuberculosis, of diphtheria, and other contagious diseases. The doctor does the work and the statistician checks it up. When a man finds that the death rate in tuberculosis is cut in twain since doctors were introduced to the germ of the disease by Dr. Koch, that less than one-third as many children die from diphtheria since the advent of the antitoxin treatment, that typhoid fever is largely robbed of its terrors through vaccination, he loses his skepticism, and if he is a lawmaker or an executor of the law, he helps enforce these lessons. Thus are medical statistics the conclusive test and principal aid of medical science.

Much Data Necessary.
Three principal kinds of data are essential to a proper checking up of health conditions in any country. The first is the statistics of births. With these statistics, data as to infant mortality makes its beginning. Without them no accurate measure of health conditions in infancy can be taken. We know that infancy is the most fatal period of human life, and that it is impossible effectively to protect the little babies without accurate data about them. Yet, comparatively few of the countries of the world have adequate birth statistics. In our country few of the states have birth registration laws.

The second essential line of information needed properly to gauge the public health to tell of the need of repressive measures, and to indicate the results that grow out of the adoption of such measures, is data concerning diseases. Many states have made certain of the most serious diseases reportable—that is, doctors are obliged to report cases in their practice to the local health officers. In the majority of cities, and also in a few of the states, all contagious diseases are required to be reported. Without such data Chicago never would have known the wide extent of typhoid fever preying there, and the drainage canal would not have been built. And without it afterward the wonderful result in the cutting down of the death rate from typhoid fever—the economic saving being vast in excess of the interest on the cost—could not have been measured.

SUGGESTS UNIVERSAL DEATH CERTIFICATE.

Death statistics also are highly essential. One of the great problems has been to get a universal death certificate and a universal practice in the statement of the causes of death. An international congress has considered this matter, and steps are being taken looking to the worldwide use of a standard death certificate showing the causes of death. This data now is given more thoroughly than any other kind of health statistics. More than half of the population in the United States now lives in territories where there is a registration of the causes of death. The census office is pushing the movement to have all the states adopt such registration.

All of these matters will come before the congress in the form of reports upon results and discussions. One of the speakers will be Dr. Cressy

Fitting his machine with a six-horse power motor and an aeroplane propeller, a French motorcyclist has made speeds up to 50 miles an hour.

New Zealanders consume more than 200 pounds of tobacco per capita per year.

L. Wilbur, chief statistician for vital statistics of the census bureau. He will tell of the remarkable strides that have been made in the development of vital statistics in the United States since 1900. The discussion of state health statistics laws will be an interesting feature of the proceedings.

One speaker will tell about the success of the model law enacted by the state of Pennsylvania, while another will tell how Missouri instituted its law and made it effective. There have been a large number of court decisions on matters affecting the health laws of the various states, and their bearing on the situation will get a hearing. Kentucky is the first state south of the Ohio river to adopt an adequate system of death registration, and the registrar of that state will tell about the operation of the law and its results. Virginia is preparing for the operation of the model law, and Dr. W. A. Plecker will tell what the Virginians are doing in that direction.

Rural Communities Most Healthy.

It is well known that health conditions in the rural districts are better than those in the cities, as is reflected by the death rate. A Canadian authority will bring a paper showing the relation of rural and urban populations to the public health, while France will bring a message concerning the improvements in the classification of the causes of death, and as to what further changes may be made with advantage. Everybody knows that doctors sometimes make wrong diagnosis, and one of them proposes to bring a paper telling the congress just how much of a margin of error there is in this connection, showing that it differs in different diseases and in different localities.

The training of health and death statisticians—technically known as demographers—will receive a share of attention. Germany has a system of training men to be statisticians just as we train men to be doctors and lawyers, and one of its leading officials will tell the congress how Germany makes demographers. France also will be heard from in this connection, and a Cornell professor will tell how the supply of and demand for statisticians may be increased. The use of machinery in the tabulation of statistics, its advantages and disadvantages, also will be discussed.

Infant mortality will receive a large share of attention. It will be shown that cutting down the death rate among children allows those who survive to grow up to a healthier manhood and womanhood, and that the movement to save the babies has become world-wide, with the result that several million now survive the perils of infancy who otherwise would fall untimely graves. A movement is on foot to induce mothers to nourish their babies in nature's way instead of resorting to the bottle and cow's milk. Carefully kept and analyzed statistics show that a baby naturally nourished has many more chances of arriving at manhood or womanhood than the one which have to be fed from a bottle. This movement will be heard from at the meeting of the congress.

Examinations Before Marriage.

There is a hope in the hearts of many friends of the race that the day yet will come when the world gives as much attention to the development of excellent family strains as it now does to the development of good breeds of cattle and horses and pigs. It is realized that this will have to come about through a long process of educating public sentiment against the marriage of the criminally inclined, the weak-minded and the diseased. Statistics of racial qualities will have a great deal of influence upon the subjects, and the measure of that influence will get its share of attention.

Everybody who carries a life insurance policy is interested in the life tables upon which our life insurance is based. It is never certain when one person or another is going to die, but it is always certain that in a list of ten thousand people in widely separated communities a fixed number of given ages will die in a year. The life of the individual is an uncertain quantity, while the life of a mass of people is determinate. As the years go by the death rate is cut down and the insurance risk is proportionately NOTED BIBLE INSTRUCTOR TALKS AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Dr. A. C. Gaebelein of New York city, editor of "several" important religious publications and one of the foremost Bible instructors of the country, spoke at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon, before one of the largest crowds that has attended these services. Dr. Gaebelein discussed the book of John and its meaning in the Bible, but devoted especial attention to the twenty-first chapter of the book and the meaning of Jesus and the four fishermen—Simon Peter, Thomas, Didimus and Nathaniel. A good deal of the talk turned on Simon Peter.

Dr. Gaebelein took up the line of thought of the chapter headings, saying in part: "We are willing to accept Jesus as savior, but many times refuse to obey him as lord. We ask for power, and if we were willing to obey the leadership of God we would receive all the power we need. Peter received power and was successful as a fisherman when he followed the divine command. Many times we are so fearful for our bodily comforts. We trust the Lord for our soul's salvation, but do not trust him 24 hours for our daily needs."

Dr. Gaebelein here used striking illustrations of this point from real life, and went on to emphasize verse nine of the chapter, where the incident of Jesus preparing breakfast for the disciples is told. He discussed the mild rebuke given to Peter at the time, in Christ's thrice questioning him: "Tavest thou me?" and commented on "the tender way in which Jesus brings back his children to him after they have disobeyed."

Dr. Gaebelein ended his talk, expounding the call to Peter: "Follow me" with an appeal to all to follow Christ. Walter Bybee sang a solo at the meeting.

Dr. Gaebelein, in connection with Dr. Ford C. Ottman, is to hold a Bible conference at the First Presbyterian church this week, with services every afternoon and evening.

REV. H. J. KOHLER WILL TALK BEFORE MINISTERS

The Rev. Henry Irving Kohler, pastor of the Tourist Memorial United Brethren in Christ church, will address the meeting of the Ministerial alliance at 11 o'clock this morning, in the Y. M. C. A. on the importance of Rally Days in Sunday School work. The program committee of the alliance will announce its plans for the winter's work at this meeting.

IN JAIL AGAIN

Red McGuire and Jack Quinn, both "landmarks" at police station, were arrested at 9 o'clock Saturday night at the corner of Tejon and Huerfano streets by Officer Toops for drunkenness and fighting. The officer had to fight both at once to keep them until the patrol wagon arrived. Red has unserved time amounting to between 30 and 60 days hanging over his head, and keeps the whole police department in training with the fight he puts up whenever he is arrested—which is often.

Healthy Mothers

Women who bear children and remain healthy are those who prepare their systems in advance of baby's coming. Unless the mother aids nature in its pre-natal work the crisis finds her system unequal to the demands made upon it, and she is often left with weakened health or chronic ailments. No remedy is so truly a help to nature as Mother's Friend, and no expectant mother should fail to use it. It relieves the pain and discomfort caused by the strain on the ligaments, makes pliant and elastic those fibres and muscles which nature is expanding, prevents numbness of limbs, and soothes the inflammation of breast glands. The system being thus prepared by Mother's Friend dispels the fear that the crisis may not be safely met. Mother's Friend assures a speedy and complete recovery for the mother, and she is left a healthy woman to enjoy the child. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. Write for our free book for expectant mothers which contains much valuable information, and many suggestions of a helpful nature. FRANKLIN REGULATOR CO., ALBANY, GA.

LETTER WRITTEN HERE TO MOTHER MAY LOCATE MISSING FLORIDA GIRL

A letter postmarked Colorado Springs is the faint hope arising Mrs. Nathalie Niles of Jacksonville, Fla., into further efforts to locate her 22-year-old daughter, Naomi, who disappeared more than a year ago while mother and daughter were visiting in Denver. Mrs. Niles, who is suffering from tuberculosis, fears the girl has met with foul play.

Driven frantic by the statements of physicians, who assert that she has but three months to live, and thoughts of never seeing her daughter again, Mrs. Niles has appealed to the Colorado police for assistance. Passing through Meeker yesterday, she declared she would continue the search as long as she was able. At the time of her disappearance, the girl informed her mother that she wished to remain in Denver to visit friends. Mrs. Niles returned to Florida. Within the next two weeks, Mrs. Niles received two letters, the last one being postmarked Colorado Springs. The girl wrote that she was enjoying excellent health. She could not be located here yesterday.

POLITICAL COMMITTEES MEET THIS AFTERNOON

The new agency central committees of the Republican and Democratic parties both will meet at 2 o'clock this afternoon, in the county house. The Republican meeting is adjourned from last Saturday, and permanent organization will be perfected at this time. F. H. Dunnington is temporary chairman, and A. E. Hayes, temporary secretary. This meeting will be preceded at 1 o'clock by a meeting of the candidates, at which the committee headed by W. C. Robinson will report on its conference with Philip R. Stewart. The Democratic county central committee is as yet unorganized. W. T. Christopher, retiring Democratic chairman, will call the meeting to order. H. H. Lyons, J. D. Chastain and M. M. Burns are possible candidates for chairman. Christopher is not up for reelection.

Springs Residents Will Visit Pueblo and Calhan

A Colorado Springs trip to the state fair at Pueblo, will be made Wednesday, and a large number of local people are expected to go. The trip will be largely by automobile, a large number of machines being pledged to go from here already, with more expected. Another Colorado Springs trip will be made to the El Paso county fair at Calhan, next Friday, and a special train probably will be chartered for this event.

DROPS DEAD AT RANCH

Mrs. Ella Raff, aged 45 years, dropped dead in the yard of her ranch at Chico Basin, 16 miles east of Fountain, at about 9 o'clock Saturday morning. Her death was caused by a sudden attack of heart trouble. She was alone at the time, and her body was not discovered until three hours later, when her husband, Joseph S. Raff, returned from the fields for lunch. She is survived in addition to her husband, by two children, a girl 14 years old and a boy of 12, and a brother living in Iowa. Her brother will arrive tomorrow morning. The funeral will be held tomorrow at the ranch.

The Raffs had lived for two and one-half years on the ranch at Chico Basin. About 18 months ago a boy named Leslie Shiffert was suffocated in a well there, the land not overhanging him.

TEMPERATURE RISES

The cold wave, one of the earliest recorded here, is on its way again. The clouds which had hovered closely for nearly two days cleared away last night. The weather was warmer and promises to improve still more. The government weather prediction for the state is: "Generally fair, with rising temperature Monday and Tuesday."

The light snow Saturday afternoon was followed by a heavy fall before midnight, and long before dawn trees, bushes, wires and roofs all over the city were loaded. The snow which struck the ground melted almost instantly. The temperature was at its lowest, 30 degrees, in the early morning, and rose gradually steadily all day, gaining to 47.

Little more cold weather is expected in this locality for several weeks.

BOULDER ON TRACK

A big boulder which slid onto the Colorado Midland tracks on the Buena Vista hill, 106 miles west of here, between Buena Vista and Bath, yesterday, tied up traffic over that road for 24 hours. A freight train hit the boulder with such force that the engine was turned completely over, and several cars were thrown off the track. No one was injured.

IS MAN UNDER SENTENCE OF DEATH FATHER OR BROTHER OR NEITHER

Whether the John Devine mentioned in press dispatches as being sentenced to death in Cuernavaca, Mexico, is his father or his brother, or neither, is the question that G. W. Devine of 21 East Las Animas street, this city, is turning over in his mind. John Devine, who is supposed to have been a former resident of Colorado Springs, was a soldier in the Mexican army, and a soldier received by the American embassy at Mexico City, stated that he was sentenced to death.

Mr. Devine said last night that both his father and brother have the same name, and both were heard of last from a Mexican town, the name of which he could not remember. Both were employed in mills, but whether they later joined the army or left Mexico following the last letter received here, is not known. Mr. Devine has been unable to secure any satisfactory information from Mexico about the affair.

S. N. NYE INJURED

S. N. Nye, manager of the Opera house, was badly injured about the head Saturday noon by a fall down the stairs leading to the balcony of the theater. He was removed to his home, 627 North Nevada avenue, and attended by Dr. D. I. Christopher. Nye was alone at the time, and is able to remember nothing more of the accident than that he started to walk down the stairway. His condition was much improved yesterday, and he probably will be out in two or three days.

BIBLE COURSE BEGINS

Imperialism and "Christ" and other lectures yesterday marked the beginning of a course of Bible lectures by Dr. Ford C. Ottman and Dr. A. C. Gaebelein. The addresses were the first of a series of sermons which will be continued until next Friday. Contrary to the original program, which scheduled the talks to be held at the First Presbyterian church, the sermons were divided among the other churches of the city. Tonight the church will be resumed at the First Presbyterian church. The lectures yesterday were heard at the First Presbyterian, Second Presbyterian, and First Methodist churches and at the Y. M. C. A. Dr. Ottman and Dr. Gaebelein divided the addresses.

Deaths and Funerals

The funeral of Mrs. Jennie B. Reich will be held at the Congregational church at Fountain at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Reich, who was 67 years of age, is survived by three children, Mrs. H. C. Mohler of Fountain, Mrs. J. Snyder of Berrien Centre, Mich., and Dr. Edgar Hall of Henry, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Matey of Chicago arrived in Colorado City yesterday to take charge of the body of Charles Matey, who died last Wednesday night at the Brookside hotel. The body will be taken east this morning.

Personal Mention

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Powell of Fairbury, Ill., have taken a cottage in Manitou for the winter.

Mrs. W. A. Wright and the Misses Alice and Sallie Wright of Wilmington, N. C., are visiting friends in the city. The party will remain at the Antlers during their stay.

G. W. Martin, general agent of the Colorado lines of the Rock Island, returned to Denver yesterday. Martin was one of the players in the recent golf contest.

More than 25 delegates who attended the convention of the Master Car and Locomotive Painters association at Denver last week are staying at the Antlers. The delegation, following visits to the principal points of interest, will return to their respective homes.

ONE TRUE GOSPEL, MANY PERVERSIONS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 15.—In Providence, Rhode Island, before many of our representative people, Pastor Russell, this afternoon took for his text St. Paul's words of marvel that he came to know the gospel of Christ called out of the world, and turned into another gospel, which is not another, but there he came that trouble him. And that would be the gospel of Christ. Let him be acquired. Galatians 1:6-8.

"When we remember that there is but one Lord, one faith, one baptism presented in the Bible," said Pastor Russell, "we are astounded to find so many faiths, so many gospels, presented by so many denominations, all bearing the name of Christ and all giving evidence of some relationship to the truth."

Although the apostle was one of the pioneers of the church, even in his day the brethren in Galatia had "so soon" turned away, in part at least, from the true message to a perverted one. "No wonder, then," said Pastor Russell, "that the true gospel had during the 12 centuries following become almost buried under human traditions. Need we wonder that haste is made rather slowly since in getting fully back to the faith once delivered to the saints?" "It will not do to say that we have many denominations, but only one gospel," said he. "Denominations were not organized for amusement, but because the founders of each believed that they saw a sufficient reason, a sufficient difference, to justify them in separating themselves and forming a new sect."

Galatians' Perverted Gospel Prevalent Today

The perverted gospel which the Galatians were disposed to accept was one that is very prevalent today, and of course is as much to be repudiated now as it was then. The so-called gospel about which St. Paul took them to task, consisted of an admixture of the traditions of the Jewish law and the grace of God as represented in Christ. "This perverted gospel was, that in addition to believing in Christ as the Savior, it was necessary to become Jews under their law arrangement; and in this way, between the law and Christ, they would obtain salvation."

Many Christians are still making the same mistake, said the pastor. They do not fully appreciate the Master's statement, "If the Son shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed." Pastor Russell, perhaps the foremost lance in the American pulpit today, and by long odds the ablest of the world's Bible exegetes, attributes the measure of bondage to forms, ceremonies and commands still prevalent to the immaturity of development of many claiming to be Christians. "These, as St. Paul styled them in his day," said Pastor Russell, "are only chains in Christ's G. Corinthians (II, 14)."

Pastor Russell proceeded to charge that "from the most prominent pulpits of Christendom the gospel of Christ respecting the forgiveness of individual sin, the redemption of the individual heart, the individual begetting of the Holy Spirit, and the personal walk in holiness of life has been discarded."

"Long ago," said this message was considered too personal. Many of the preachers, having had no such experiences themselves, properly enough were loath to talk about what they did not understand. But such things must go on just the same! Preaching must continue, and something must be said. And so the gospel has been brought forward to fill the gap.

"Far be it from me to touch baptism to the duties and responsibilities of life. Nothing in the words of Jesus and the apostles can be construed to encourage suchness. In respect to health, marriage, procreation, education and a proper provision of physical needs, the present life is the gospel of Jesus and the apostles. However, distinctly impress upon all the followers of Jesus that their consecration to walk in his steps means their separation from worldly ambitions, wealth, praise of men, political office and living of chief concern to the preservation of their earthly lives."

Elect to Bless, the Non-Elect.

At this point Pastor Russell struck to the root of his subject. He pointed out the almost complete failure to recognize the great blessing plan of the ages, hidden for ages for 4300 years and in the days of the apostles made known for the first time. He said that such a failure to recognize God's plan and purpose, and to follow faithfully after them, is a complete failure. God is now conducting an election according to fitness, and that after this he will use the elect in the work of blessing the non-elect.

A LESSON FROM OUR ANCESTORS

In the good old fashioned days of our grandmothers they depended upon the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease.

Years have passed by, but science has never been able to improve upon the medicinal effects of these same roots and herbs which are Nature's cure for disease.

Lidia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that successful remedy for female ills, had its origin in this way and today tons of roots and herbs are consumed annually in making it.

The following of Jesus," he said, "is not a liberty to follow theories, either of their own or of other men in respect to the way in which the great work of uniting the world is to be accomplished. However, as we are already interested in everything which makes for the betterment of humanity, and as they have opportunity to do so, they should be free to do so. VAUDEVILLE OPENS AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE

Opening today, matinee, vaudeville at the Grand Opera house, running the entire week. Matinee daily, with two performances in the evening. Six complete Sullivan & Considine acts will be seen on this week's program.

The eastern booking agents will send out for the opening week one of the strongest vaudeville bills that has been offered at popular prices in this city.

Open today, matinee and week. "The Shumers," the sensational tenth act, which, in itself, is a headliner attraction. As their advance billing reads, "Always Leading, Always Ahead." This act being something new in its line.

Jack Campbell, monologist and parody singer, a joyful comedian and song writer. "That's All."

Dolph and Susie Levion, singing, portrait painting and comedy. A big laughing and applauding bill.

Calhoun, York and King, the barber shop trio. "Southern folks from southern town." This act has been "knocking them out of the seats" over the entire circuit.

"Ratline Billiken" Johnson will be seen on the bill in three of Jerome H. Remick & Co.'s latest rag songs. "Billiken," we know, can make good anywhere.

As the big feature act, Myrtle Byrne and company, spectacular shooting act, that is spectacular, will close the bill at the Grand this week. This is one of the highest salaried "shoot acts" on the American vaudeville stage. This act closed in St. Louis Saturday evening and is making the jump to open the first week of vaudeville here today matinee. The booking agents are sparing no expense in offering a high-class act at the Opera house for the next few weeks.

Popular prices will prevail. Matinee, 20 and 25 cents; evening, 30, 20 and 25 cents. Three performances daily. Matinee, 2:30, 7:30 and 9:10. Three performance, evening, reserved seats. Phone Main 725.

Next week, Master Joe Harrity and company will be seen on the bill, featuring world's greatest novelty comedy. This is one of the best acts of the S. & C. circuit.

Next week the vaudeville will be seen for four days only, as on Monday and Saturday road attractions appear at the theater.

Week of September 23, being an ex-the week of vaudeville, with no road attractions. Watch papers for dates and programs.

THE BURNS NEWS NOTES

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram," a farce comedy of the Marathon racing type, will hold the boards at The Burnsville week.

Action is the most important factor in a good farce and the audience must be carried from one complication to another without being given time to digest the tangled plot. Laughs are what the author has in view and the more steady stream of incident, the more successful the farce. Complication must follow close upon the heels of complication so rapidly that each seems to bring the other in. The middle and the author who can continue to pile up amusing situations after the limit has apparently been reached, is the one who may consider that he has written a successful farce. All this has been accomplished in "Mrs. Temple's Telegram."

The plot begins with one little white lie, and all of the characters are drawn deeper and deeper into the mire, incident crowding upon incident and ridiculous situations following each other so rapidly that the audience is left breathless with laughter.

In brief, the story of Mrs. Temple's Telegram concerns the adventures of Jack Temple and his friend, Frank Fuller. Mr. Temple goes for a ride on the ferry wheel and when the machinery breaks is compelled to spend the night at the top of the wheel with one other woman in the car. Seeing that there is no chance of his wife believing the truth, he invents a friend, John Brown of Elm avenue, Pickleton, with whom he claims to have spent the night. He then induces his friend, Frank Fuller, to impersonate Mr. Brown. Mrs. Fuller, it develops, was the woman with whom he spent the night in the car. There proves to be a real Mr. Brown at the address given for the fictitious Mr. Brown and the real Mr. and Mrs. Brown have some interesting complications. The author piles up the complications and entanglements until he is forced to cut them out just before the final curtain, ending all happily in a midnight supper for four.

We do not cater to babies and young children—hence our rules not to admit children too young to occupy seats, this rule will be enforced strictly—a little latitude once or twice—has shown the need of this.

The house will always be kept warm—so you need not worry about sudden climatic changes.

Remember to phone 200.

Night prices 75c to 25c and every seat good.

Read the plot above carefully and you will appreciate what a field it presents for innocent fun, then get your tickets.

THE UNDERGROUND RAILROAD

From the Kansas City Star.

The underground railroad was not a railroad at all, nor was it underground. It was the name applied to a loosely organized system, maintained by ardent abolitionists, for transporting runaway negro slaves to Canada. The "underground" is said to have derived its name thus: In 1831 a runaway negro crossed the Ohio river from Kentucky by swimming. His master, who had to wait until he found a skiff, kept track of the slave until he reached the opposite bank, but there he could find no trace of him, and finally gave up the chase, remarking that "the nigger must have gone off on an underground road." The story was repeated and the name stuck.

The underground railroad was particularly active in Pennsylvania and in Ohio, and had its beginning very shortly after the close of the Revolutionary war. The Quakers were among the first people in America to decide that slavery was morally wrong, and having reached that decision they believed that it was right to aid escaping slaves, regardless of what the law had to say on the subject.

Helping Slaves to Escape a Crime.

The law, indeed, was very explicit, a statute passed in 1793 providing that those who lent any aid to escaping slaves were liable to fines of $500, or 60 days in jail, and provided that slaves might be brought back to their masters from any northern state.

Mainly then, the only way to insure the safety of the fugitives was to send them to Canada. And that was what the underground railroad did.

Throughout Pennsylvania, Ohio and the other border states regular secret routes were established. It has been proposed recently that these routes of the old underground railroad be marked, just as the Santa Fe trail is marked today. Along the routes of the underground were farmers and townsmen who were always willing to aid escaping negroes to give them food, shelter, to disguise them if necessary and send them along to the next "station agent" along the route. Of course, all this was illegal, but most of the workers on the underground railroad figured that they were obeying a higher law, and they went serenely about their business of law-breaking, their consciences clear.

By "Grapevine Telegraph."

Great secrecy was used in the necessary communications which had to be exchanged regarding the prisoners. There were special signals, passwords and messages couched in figurative language. This mode of communication was known as the "grapevine telegraph," and it was both picturesque and accurate. Along the Ohio river, in western Virginia, the foot of an owl was a signal frequently used by the rescuers. Here is a typical message, which was sent by G. W. Weston of Low Moor, Ia.:

Mr. C. B. C.—Dear Sir: By tomorrow evening's mail you will receive two volumes of the "Irrepressible Conflict," bound in black. After perusal, please forward.

Another Iowa wrote:

Dear Grinnell—Uncle Tom says if the roads are not too bad you can look for those fleeces of wool by tomorrow. Send them on to test the market price, no back charges. Yours,

An Ohio man, a bookbinder by trade, had a large wagon built with drawers in such a way as to leave a large hiding place in the center of the wagon bed. With this he drove through slave country, playing his trade, and incidentally carrying off slaves. Sometimes negroes were placed in boxes and shipped as freight; a Baltimore slave was 17 hours in a box, and thereafter was known as William Box Jones.

Henry Box Jones was sent from Richmond, Va., to Philadelphia by express. Hannah Marsh, a Quaker woman of Chester county, Pennsylvania, was in the habit of taking garden produce to Philadelphia in a covered wagon to sell, and in this two for the underground railroad.

The underground railroad did not extend far into the south itself, but usually enough, but as soon as a runaway succeeded in reaching the southern end of one of the lines he was practically sure of escape. Hiding places were made in barns, in attics and in woodland places, and though the abolitionists were hardly treated and regarded with contempt and hatred by many of their less ardent northern neighbors, they were not discouraged.

In 1850 the work of the underground railroad had become so extensive that congress at the behest of the slaveholders, passed a new fugitive slave act much more severe than the first statute. This law provided for a fine of $1,000 and six months imprisonment and made it obligatory upon all citizens to aid the slave owner in recovering his property. It provided, too, that only the slave owner might testify before a United States commissioner that his affidavit was all that was necessary to establish his claim to the negro, and that the negro himself could not testify. As a result, it is said, many free negroes were carried back to slavery. However that may have been, the effect of the fugitive slave act was to spur the underground railroad to greater activity.

Kansas Had a Branch.

Railroads owned by abolitionist sympathizers furnished passes to runaway negroes, captains of lake steamboats looked the other way when negroes came aboard and permitted them to "snow away," landing them safely in Canadian ports. Kansas, too, had a branch of the underground railroad, smuggling runaway slaves from Missouri northward through the state, across the border of Nebraska and into Iowa, where abolitionists were plentiful. The outcome of the movement, of course, was the Civil war, and it has been more than 50 years since the underground railroad has had any work to do.
